KUANTAN: Pahang folk are ready for a wet weekend, if not floods, looking at the non-stop rain, sometimes turning heavy, since Thursday. The water level at several rivers are already showing signs of rising and certain stretches of roads in Tanjung Api fronting the beach are under water. The Meteorological Services Department said the rain would continue throughout the day and night. Seas are forecast to be rough with waves of between 2.5m and 3.5m and dangerous to small boats, and winds at between 40 and 50kph, from the northeast.
